CONTINUE CASE ON MISSING DATE

Offense Might have been Committed Nineteen Hundred Years ago, from Indictment, so Paul Glass will be Tried in August.

Because of a technical defect in the indictment charging Paul Glass with receiving stolen goods, the case against him was continued this morning to August term of Court. It was pointed out that the date line was not filled out and that to all intents and purposes the offense was committed in the year "19", instead of 1915. This, Glass's attorney, E. A. Weaver Esq., indicated was a rather long time ago. Continuance was granted and the omission will be rectified.

Amos Wilkerson and William Glass, accused of larceny, have entered pleas of guilty, and are due to come up for sentence on Saturday. The cases grew out of thefts in and about Biglerville.

Frank Morton and Thomas Jackson, two of the gang of tramps arrested in the west end of town several weeks ago, were tried this morning and found guilty. Their defense was that the objectionable conduct with which they were charged was committed while they were so much under the influence of liquor as not to be responsible.

The next case called was that of the Commonwealth against Claude Groft and George Simpson, both of McSherrystown, and accused of the theft of a horse and buggy from Groft's father, E. A. Weaver represents the defendants and the case is still on trial.

After acquitting John D. Mayers and James Clingan on a charge of selling liquor on Sunday, and continuing the other cases against Mr. Mayers, the Court on Monday afternoon took up the trial of Thomas and John Pasco, both of McSherrystown, who were accused by S. L. Johns, the well known cigar manufacturer, of assault and battery.

It was alleged that the offense was committed in Mr. Johns' office on January 30 last and followed a refusal to pay them for work which had been done at Mr. Johns' direction. The father and son were represented by J. Donald Swope, and District Attorney Wible conducted the case for the Commonwealth. The men were convicted.

The assault and battery cases against Peter Shultz and George Craig were adjusted by the defendants agreeing to pay the costs. Craig is still due to stand trial on a charge of malicious mischief.

M. E. Bergendahl, magazine solicitor, pleaded guilty to three charges of false pretense, and David Wolf pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny.

The Court will follow the usual custom of imposing sentence on Saturday.

Wm. Arch McClean presented a petition, signed by 249 voters of the First Ward, asking that the polling place be changed from the Lincoln Way Hotel to the Fire Engine House. The request was granted.

ANOTHER CHANGE

Federal Hoof and Mouth Disease Quarantine.

The federal order of quarantine on account of the hoof and mouth disease has been modified, and Adams County cattle dealers will benefit thereby.

Adams county is included in the modified area and interstate shipments from this territory can be made into quarantined districts for immediate slaughter. All shipments can be made in this district without a federal examination.

Dressed carcasses can be shipped from Adams county without a permit providing the hides have been removed.

Frank Patterson has purchased on private terms the two story frame dwelling on York street, owned and occupied by C. A. Williams who will continue as the tenant. Mr. Williams, will in the near future, begin the erection of a new residence on his lot on Hanover street, east of the High School building.

FEW REQUESTING OIL ON STREETS

Highway Committee Sends Force to Springs Avenue. Chambersburg Street Next. Requests Granted in the Order Received.

Only three sections of town have asked for oil or tarvia since the council announced, after their meeting last week, that it would be provided only on the blocks where subscriptions were made to meet part of the expense. The highway committee has some material on hand from last year and another carload of oil is expected to-day. The work will be done in the order in which checks are received.

The business people about Centre Square were first to apply, taking up their subscription the day after meeting of council. Tarvia B was applied, the work being finished Monday and it is believed that the roadway there will need no further attention this summer. The tarvia is caking, as usual, and forming a solid surface over the top of the street, so that no dust will accumulate except that which is blown on from other streets.

This morning the residents of Springs avenue turned over to the borough treasury a check for $42 in payment for the oil in that part of town and the highway force started work at once to sweep the roadway and prepare it for the application. Regular road oil, which has been very successful there in other years, is again being used.

Business men and other residents of the first square of Chambersburg street were solicited to-day for subscriptions for the oiling of that block. The highway committee fixed the amount required there at $25. It is lower than most places for the reason that the block is not so long as many others, and also because a number of properties brick paving is run well toward the center of the street.

As soon as this work is completed the highway committee will be in position to put the force of men on other parts of the town and are ready now to receive applications for either oil or tarvia. The tarvia is suitable only for the streets that have a solid stone surface and not for portions where it is principally shale or other material. At such places oil will be used.

DIDN'T GET FAR

Gettysburg the First Stop on Trip to the Coast.

Edward Allen, Roy Zepp, and Roy Small, three Hanover youths, were taken in hand by Constable Charles H. Wilson upon the arrival of the Pittsburgh Express Monday evening. The boys, aged between 18 and 20, had left home in the hope of beating their way to the Pacific Coast but failed to escape the vigilance of the local officer. They had ridden on the steps under the floor of the vestibule and had had an uncomfortable journey on the first sixteen miles of their trip. Mr. Wilson placed them in a safe place until to-day when they were listed for a hearing before Squire Harnish.

WILL REBUILD

To Replace Buehler Property with New House.

Dr. H. L. Diehl will begin in the very near future to raze the old Edward Buehler property, 30 and 32 Baltimore street, now occupied by his residence and office. He will replace it with a modern three story brick structure, with a store room 17 x 80 feet, and his office on the first floor; and his residence on the second and third stories. The Roedel property adjoining, and also owned by Dr. Diehl, will remain as at present.

During the rebuilding Dr. Diehl will have his offices in his property on Baltimore Hill now occupied by John Robertson.

MEETING

Will Hear Reports and Collect the Yearly Dues.

The W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. McAllister, East High street, tomorrow (Wednesday) afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Reports from departments will be given and the yearly dues collected. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

BAND HOLDS ITS LAST PRACTICE

And Gettysburg's Parade on May Thirty First will be without Music unless Citizens Come to the Rescue, Declare Members.

Memorial Day without a band! That is the condition which confronts Gettysburg as the result of a decision, reached Monday evening after the regular practice of the Citizens' Band, when it was agreed that no further rehearsals be held. George Gouker, leader for the past several months, handed in his resignation, the members departed for their homes with the understanding that work for the spring and summer was at an end, and Gettysburg is now without an organization to provide music on public occasions.

"It was all going out and nothing coming in", one member said this morning. "We had plenty of expense and no source of revenue. That sort of financing cannot be kept up indefinitely. One of our members has personally paid the leader for his services for many weeks past. We received no other help. A note for $125 for instruments is outstanding against the band, and there is no money in the treasury."

"We never have any opportunity to make money. Whenever we are asked to play for local events, it is with the request that we do it without charge. The last time we made any money through our services was at the time of the Wadsworth monument dedication, and there is nothing like that in view now, so that there was really nothing for us to do but simply to quit."

Other members of the band cannot understand the exact reason for the attitude of citizens in failing to give their support. They say that many other objects, not any more worthy, are heartily and substantially supported, but the band must to a great extent work out its own problems.

Unless some action is taken there will either be no music in Gettysburg on Memorial Day or a band will have to be secured from out of town. The money required to do this would give our own band a substantial lift. The members say they have little ambition to try to remedy matters, that public support is not forthcoming and that, so far as they are concerned, the organization is done.

The instruments on hand will pay the outstanding debt, it is said, but it is believed that they will be held here in the hope that some one will come to the rescue.

MANY CONFERENCES

Will be Held at Same Hour in Gettysburg Church.

A new feature in Sunday School conference work has been arranged for the session of the First District convention, to be held in the Presbyterian church Friday afternoon. The different departments will meet in various rooms of the church and conferences will be carried on simultaneously as follows: cradle roll, primary, and junior conference, in charge of Mrs. Gise; secondary-teen, in charge of T. J. Winebrenner; O. A. B. C. and teacher training, George P. Black; missionary department, Miss Louise Stahle; temperance, Miss Luella McAllister; home department, Mrs. Charles F. Sanders. The conferences will all be conducted at the same period and all workers who are interested are invited to attend.

FIND A PEST

Watch your Trees or they will be Destroyed.

Anyone having pines or arbor vitae trees should watch them carefully this summer. Cocoons will appear on the tree, generally hanging downward from the twigs. On opening the cocoon there will be a dark capsule, in which are hundreds of little eggs. These eggs hatch rapidly and the larvae spread quickly over the entire tree. The foliage will turn brown and die. A solution of paris green may be used on the trees effectively. If there are not too many it would be well to pick them off. Any limbs becoming infected and dead, should be sawed off and burned.

RING IS AGAIN AFTER BOLL CAFE

Offers Two Hundred Dollars More than Former Sale Price. Former Gettysburg Hotel Man Stops Court's Confirmation.

The proposed transfer of the liquor license of the A. C. Boll cafe, in York, from Charles E. Boll, administrator of the estate of the late A. C. Boll to G. Curtis Helb, was held up in York County court Monday by an offer of J. A. Ring, lessee of the Hotel Brooks, to pay $200 more for the license and fixtures of the Boll cafe than the figure at which Mr. Helb bid them in at the public sale.

The court ordered Mr. Ring to produce a certified check for $400 to guarantee his good faith in making the offer, and in the meantime a rule was granted on all parties to show cause why the offer of Mr. Ring should not be accepted. The argument in the case will be heard next Friday.

Mr. Helb bid in the Boll cafe at $4,800 recently after several attempts at public sale had been made. Mr. Ring has recently leased for a term of years the Hotel Brooks, which adjoins the Boll cafe on the south.

At the last session of the license court Mr. Ring applied for a liquor license for his hotel, but the judges refused it on account of the property then being in an unfinished condition. It has since been opened and is enjoying excellent patronage, it is said.

Nine cases of smallpox have been discovered in Hagerstown and three cases in Sharpsburg. Following the discovery several days ago that Harry Stilwell, of Sharpsburg, and Frank Murphy, a railroad man, of Hagerstown had smallpox, Dr. D. A. Watkins, health officer, started an investigation which resulted Monday in the discovery of ten more cases. Just how many more people in the city and Washington county have the dread disease is not known at present, but the health officials will make a thorough search in order that the people suffering with the disease may be quarantined at once.

Fire Engine's Beginning.

It was not until the close of the sixteenth century that the hand squirt was introduced into England, and they were extensively used in the great London fire in 1666. Soon after the commencement of the seventeenth century the Londoners perceived the convenience that would arise from fixing these squirts to a movable cart, and applying their power through the means of a lever, and the first engine thus obtained was considered a great mechanical achievement.

The Corn of Long Ago.

Many ways of cooking corn are known, but the simpler are the better. A sturdy race of pioneers thrived on mush and milk and corn pone and hoe cake. Civilization and luxury have led the children of these pioneers to look with disdain on corn, and to prefer to secure its great health-giving properties through other mediums. We have been taking our corn by way of pork and beef—Maysville (Ky.) Bulletin.

GENERAL ATTACK IN DARDANELLES

Allied Fleet and Army Combine in Movement.

SHIPS SHELL THE STRAITS

The Advance Continues Despite Serious Opposition, Says the Official British Bulletin.

London, April 27.—The following official announcement was given out in London:

"The general attack on the Dardanelles by the fleet and the army was resumed on Monday.

"The disembarkation of the army, covered by the fleet, began before sunrise at various points on the Gallipoli peninsula, and in spite of serious opposition from the enemy in strong entrenchments protected by barbed wire entanglements, was completely successful.

"Before nightfall large forces were established on shore.

"The landing of the army and the advance continue."

Recent intimations from London conceding the impossibility of taking Constantinople by a naval attack alone have been coupled with accounts from various sources of the collection of an Anglo-French expeditionary force, of which the English general, Sir Ian Hamilton, is understood to be in command, with General d'Amade serving under him in charge of the French contingent. This force has been assembling for some time in Egypt and elsewhere in eastern Mediterranean points, and last week came fragmentary announcements of the landing of detachments in the Gulf of Saros and the subsequent evacuation of Enos, Turkey's westernmost seaport.

According to a Copenhagen report the allies' plans contemplate a landing army of 300,000 men, half Russian and half Anglo-French. Paris and London reports, however, have dealt only with an Anglo-French army, about whose strength and numbers nothing has been allowed to transpire.

Private advices received in New York from London convey a report current in England that Earl Kitchener's new army to the number of 100,000 and even 200,000 men, is in the Aegean. It was supposed that these troops, which have been leaving English shores in large numbers, were going to the continent, but observers who have returned from the British front in France have commented on the fact that none of Kitchener's big army is there, and it is known that thousands of them have left England during the past six or eight weeks.

The allied fleet which for many weeks has been bombarding the forts at the western entrance of the forty-mile-long straits that guard Constantinople 200 miles away, has made little apparent progress and has sustained severe losses.

GERMANS REPULSED IN EAST

Petrograd Reports Successes Along Poland and Carpathian Lines.

Petrograd, April 27.—The following official communication was issued by the war office:

"During the night of April 24-25 German forces aggregating from two companies (200 men) to one battalion (1000 men) made several attempts to attack our advanced positions between Kalwaria and Ludwinow, in Russian Poland. All the attacks were easily repulsed by our fire. After one of the repulses the enemy fled in disorder.

"Our Alsea Mouretz aircraft on the morning of the 24th successfully attacked the station at Neidenburg, East Prussia, where their bombs caused a number of fires and destroyed a portion of the railway line.

"In the Carpathians the enemy recently has been increasing in volume his artillery fire on the whole front. He has apparently brought up fresh units of heavy artillery. During the night of the 24th-25th the enemy delivered a series of persistent attacks in the region of the Uzok pass, that we repulsed with rifle fire and hand grenades, inflicting very great losses on him.

"On the other sectors of our front there has been no change of importance. Artillery and rifle fire of varying intensity alternated at some points with minor outpost engagements."

JAPAN EXPLAINS CHINA DEMANDS

Sends Detailed Account to Great Britain.

Washington, April 27.—The Japanese government has given to Great Britain a detailed explanation of the demands made upon China which, according to information obtainable in Washington, is said to have relieved apprehension in London as to the scope of the Japanese policy in China.

The report from Peking that the conferences had been resumed and that Japan now had presented twenty-four demands was received with much interest in Washington.

This list is virtually an amplification of the original twenty-one demands and includes even the demands for railroad concessions. It is understood, in territory where the lines would compete with British interests. The Japanese insist that the Chinese government accept the new list of demands in its entirety, but no time limit has been set.

China is making certain military preparations which have been described as "feeble."

Now that the subject has been discussed with Great Britain, the United States and other powers, some observers think Japan may have renewed the plan to obtain China's approval in principle to the demands.

With such an acceptance it is supposed Japan might not be disposed to press for a detailed agreement on many of the points, preferring to have the present negotiations stand as an expression to the world of Japan's interests in China.

TO SHELL CANADIAN PORTS

German Warships on Way, Says Letter to Interned Captain.

Portland, Ore., April 27.—Headed for the Atlantic coast of Canada is a German squadron bent on bombarding important cities and fortifications, according to a letter received by Captain Carl Brauch, master of the German bark Dalbek, interned here since July 23, from a friend who is a deck officer of the German navy.

"Eight days before the German fleet bombarded Scarborough, Hartlepool and other ports, I received a letter from the same friend, telling that the German fleet would strike for the British coast, and I thought the statement was laughable," said Captain Brauch. "Since it came to pass, I am convinced that the move of the squadron to the Canadian coast may not be a myth."

The letter to Captain Brauch has been on the way since March 24.

TRY TO SHOW T. R. AS INVISIBLE BOSS

Colonel Discussed Appointments With Leaders.

50 LETTERS READ IN COURT

Political Secrets Exposed When It is Shown How Roosevelt Forced Nomination of Hughes For Governor.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 7.—Despite all cavilling and scoffing, Colonel Roosevelt had to admit that once he walked with the wicked and breakfasted with the unrighteous, not that he always accepted their ways nor weakly heeded their whispers; that was by no means revealed in the long cross-examination regarding his political intimacy with the easy boss (Platt).

It was shown, however, that he had not begun to separate the Jekylls and the Hydes in 1899, his first year as governor; and that he was at great pains to please Senator Platt, hastening to this place and that at Platt's suggestions or his own, for nice, quiet and comfortable chats over desirable legislation, who should be made judges or how messages to the legislature should deal with the trusts.

They met, the governor and the easy boss, most often at the Fifth Avenue hotel, where Platt lived, or at the home of Douglas Robinson.

But these conferences, said the colonel, in his ready and fluent explanations to the jury, did not mean that there was invisible government at work, such invisible government as he had accused Barnes of maintaining, but that the cause of righteousness and for the sake of substantial justice, it was necessary to recognize Platt and the organization to get popular measures through the legislature. He had to deal with Platt to make sure the will of the people was not defeated. Platt controlled the legislature. What could a man do?

The colonel's wrath stirred against chastisement, as William L. Barnum, of Syracuse, who took up the work of cross-examination left off by Mr. Ivins on Friday, reviewed bluntly and harshly the whole story of the colonel's relations with Senator Platt.

It was more difficult for him to preserve his smile when Barnum read probably fifty letters that showed very plainly how closely the governor and boss were working together in that year. Their whole import was to impress the jurors with the fact that Roosevelt never attempted a matter of importance without seeking Platt's views, and that frequently he acted as Platt suggested.

Political secrets popped to the surface when those letters were read. Some of the frankest possible comments regarding Hughes were exchanged between the leaders who were struggling to end his career, and the president, who was stubbornly sure that Hughes was the most available candidate.

Every line in the letters written by Barnes and Parsons to Roosevelt reveals how thoroughly the leaders detested Governor Hughes and how earnestly they tried to escape Roosevelt's indomitable dictum that Hughes it must be.

Even Parsons, who was supposed at the time to be not unfriendly to Hughes, was working with Barnes to change the colonel's mind. Roosevelt wouldn't have taken him if any other candidate had possessed the same strength. It hurt to take Hughes, but it might hurt more to take somebody else. That was his point of view.

He very nearly had a revolt on his hands, but he quelled the rebellious "made puppets out of them," as Parsons bitterly complained, and jammed through the nomination. No amount of argument or persuasion could move him.

Marquette, of West Reading. At the last moment Miss Border decided upon single bliss. Mr. Marquette is much dejected over the affair.

BASE BALL TRUCE DECLARED BY LEADERS

Federals and the Big Leagues Reach Agreement.

Chicago, April 27.—While peace has not been declared between the forces of organized base ball and the Federal league, there is a truce in the warfare, and before next season opens it is expected that a truce will have been established on a basis that will bring quiet to the national game for another decade at least.

The activities of the leaders of the two factions last week resulted in an agreement whereby the two sides will leave each other's players alone for the balance of this summer. With such an agreement in force, the opposing leaders believe it is only a short step to a declaration of peace.

Rumor says that the cause for getting together at the present time was a fear that Judge Landis might render a decision that would be a blow to the game. In order that the fighting leaders might have a chance to adjust their differences out of court the big decision has been held off.

MACK DONE WITH BAKER

Athletic Manager Now Bars Home Run King From Base Ball.

Boston, April 27.—"I'm through with Frank Baker as a ball player. He will never appear in an Athletic suit as long as I am connected with the team. And it is my intention at the present time not to allow Baker to become the property of any other team in the American league. I would not sell him for $1,000,000 in cash."

This is the decided and positive statement Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics. The last straw in the Baker-Mack episode was the fact that Baker played with the Upland team in the Delaware County League of Pennsylvania Saturday afternoon.

THREATEN HOLLY

Nearby Resort is Threatened by Forest Blaze.

Fire which broke out again in the South Mountain near Toland, has today spread over an area of about 300 acres. It is making rapid progress in different directions despite the efforts of hundreds of men who are fighting it constantly.

The flames approached the lake at Mount Holly Park. The park is believed to be in danger for the second time within several days.

The efforts of the fire-fighters were concentrated for a time near Barnitz Station, where buildings were threatened. The flames approached close to the saw mill of A. C. Givler and the mill of J. Harvey Lime.

The Philadelphia clay works and the South Mountain mining works, near Mount Holly were in danger Monday afternoon and the employees have all deserted their usual work to help fight the flames.

Commissioner Conklin and Deputy Commissioner Williams will visit the Pine Grove, Caledonia and Mont Alto reservations this week to ascertain the damage done to State property.

Prepare For Big World Crisis, Wilson Warns United States

Inclusive remarks made by President Wilson in his speech at the Associated Press luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York:

You deal in the raw material of opinion and, if my convictions have any validity, opinion ultimately governs the world.

The times behind us have been difficult. The times before us are likely to be more difficult, because whatever may be said about the present condition of the world's affairs it is clear that they are drawing rapidly to a crisis.

I am not now thinking of preposterous a thought as that we should sit in judgment upon them (the warring nations), but that we shall some day have to assist in reconstructing the processes of peace.

I am not speaking in a selfish spirit when I say that our whole duty, for the present, at any rate, is summed up in this motto, "America First!"

I try to put myself in the place of the man who does not know all the things that I know and ask myself what he would like the policy of this country to be.

Not the talkative man, not the partisan man, not the man that remembers first that he is a Republican or Democrat or that his parents were German or English, but who remembers first that the whole destiny of modern affairs centers largely upon his being an American first of all.

If I permitted myself to be a partisan in this present struggle I would be unworthy to represent

you. I am not saying that I am worthy to represent you, but I do claim this degree of worthiness—that before everything else I love America.

Let us think of America before we think of Europe, in order that America may be fit to be Europe's friend when the day of tested friendship comes. The test of friendship is getting ready to help both sides when the struggle is over.

The basis of neutrality is not indifference; it is not self-interest. The basis of neutrality is sympathy for mankind. It is fairness; it is good will at bottom; it is impartiality of spirit and judgment.

There is in some quarters a disposition to create distempers in this body politic. Men are saying that if we should go to war upon either side there will be a divided America—an abominable libel of ignorance!

My interest in the neutrality of America is not the petty desire to keep out of trouble. I do not want to walk around trouble. If any man wants a scrap that is an interesting scrap and worth while, I am his man. I warn him that he is not going to draw me into the scrap for his advertisement, but if he is looking for trouble—that is the trouble of men in general—and I can help a little, why, then, I am in for it.

The world ought to know the truth, but the world ought not at this period of unstable equilibrium to be disturbed by rumor. We cannot afford to let the rumors of irresponsible persons and origins get into the atmosphere of the United States.

SOME FIGURES TO SHOW HOLD OF MOVIES.

More than $275,000,000 a year is spent in the United States on movies, Commodore J. Stuart Blackton says.

Rental paid for films amounts to $27,000,000 a year.

About $50,000,000 of capital is tied up in unreleased films.

Pictures made in a year would make a band that would go twice around the earth.

Not fewer than 11,000,000 people visit film shows daily in this country.

Between $15,000 and $20,000 is spent each evening for the films to provide the entertainment.

More than $120,000,000 is invested in the theater buildings.

Spring's Joy

He planted seeds three weeks ago. Quite neatly in a window box. And now they're up he doesn't know. The cucumbers from four o'clocks.

As tender little leaves appear. Each shoot his happiness completes. And then he asks as you draw near, "Say, are those radishes or beets?"

Some of his seeds have failed to sprout. The reason why he doesn't know. Per contra, he sees starting out. Some seeds he sowed a year ago.

So life for him is full of joy. As his big box is full of seeds—Pure happiness without alloy. Though some of his new shoots are weeds.

NEW WIRELESS CAR OF ARMY IS MARVEL.

Can Face Any Sort of Land Surface and Has Eighty Foot Mast.

A traveling wireless station that can do almost anything but shin up a telegraph pole is the latest contribution of Uncle Sam's efficient army officers to the defense forces of this country.

Successful experiments just concluded at Fort Myer show that "radio tractor No. 2" can even travel over the fields when necessary, whereas its predecessor, No. 1, had to confine its peregrinations to the highways.

Radio tractor No. 2 consists of a motor truck that drives, brakes and steers on all four wheels and carries a knocked down army field wireless set. The mast that supports the antennae is eighty feet high when extended and comprises eight sections of light tubing that are strapped to one side of the truck when not in use.

The wireless outfit has a sending range of 250 miles under ordinary conditions and an almost illimitable receiving range. It is a great improvement on the old hand operated apparatus that is laboriously toted around on the backs of three pack mules. Moreover, it is not liable to stampede under fire.

The power to operate the sending apparatus is furnished by the truck's own motor and is made available by simply shifting a lever. "This is a great improvement over the old hand operated sender and much more powerful. The electric generator is rated at two kilowatts or, roughly, twenty-two 'man power'."

NELSON ESTATE FOR PUBLIC.

William R. Nelson, editor and owner of the Kansas City Star, left a farm of 1,750 acres in Jackson county, Mo., to be a model farm for thirty years for the purpose of instructing neighbors in stock raising and farming. On the death of both Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Kirkwood, the editor's daughter, the management of the property is to be placed in the hands of a board of trustees.

The trustees are required to set aside for each of the children of Mrs. Kirkwood, if any, property of the reasonable value of $1,000,000. The residue is to be managed by "The William Rockhill Nelson Trust," to purchase works of art which will contribute to the enjoyment of the public generally.

Although Thomas Goggins, who claims to be 102 years old, is said to be worth at least $15,000 and admits himself that he has a few "little dollars" in the bank, he is locked up in the county jail at Syracuse, N. Y., for contempt of court and stubbornly refuses to pay a fine of $18 and costs levied by Judge William G. Cady.

EATS NOVEL BREAKFAST.

Farmer Enjoys Two Ostrich Eggs Almost Every Morning.

Louis Sands of Spring Lake, Mich., enjoys the distinction of being the only man in the United States who sits down to two soft boiled ostrich eggs for breakfast every morning. Not every morning in the year, maybe, but every morning when the ostriches are laying well. An ostrich egg is about the size of a grapefruit and is pretty well stuffed with meat. Two of them make "some breakfast."

Mr. Sands owns a herd of ostriches.

BALL THRILL KILLS WOMAN.

Excitement at Game Proves Fatal to Enthusiastic Fan.

In the crowd at the New York Polo grounds to see the game between the Giants and Phillies was Mrs. Susanna Wisniewsky, wife of Edmund Wisniewsky, a public accountant, and when the visiting team made two runs in the second inning excitement ran so high she sank back unconscious. Dr. Oscar Leisner, physician at the grounds, found her dead from heart failure.

Mrs. Wisniewsky was forty years old and an enthusiastic baseball fan.

BLOWS OUT HIS HEART.

Miner, Brooding Over Europe's War, Uses Dynamite to Kill Himself.

As a result of brooding over the war in Europe, Joseph Hanscock, a young German working as a miner at Homer, Pa., literally blew out his heart.

Dressed in his best clothes, Hanscock attached a fuse to a stick of dynamite, touched a match to it and pressed the explosive close to his heart. His chest was shattered.

New Styles For Mexican Judges.

President Gonzalez Garza has issued a decree prescribing the dress that must be habitually worn by judges. The dress includes black Quaker hat, black frock coat, white shirt and cravat, black gloves and black walking stick. The emblem of justice embossed in gold must be worn on the lapel of the coat.

Desire Linked With Will.

Someone has said that one may see the fulfillment of any desire if it is linked with will. There must be purposeful, concentrated willing all along the line to make any issue successful.

SULPHUR DRIES UP ECZEMA AND STOPS ITCHING

This old time skin healer is used just like any cold cream.

Sulphur, says a renowned dermatologist, just common hold sulphur made into a thick cream will soothe and heal the skin when irritated and broken out with Eczema or any form of eruption. The moment it is applied all itching ceases and after two or three applications the Eczema disappears, leaving the skin clear and smooth.

He tells Eczema sufferers to get from any good pharmacy an ounce of hold sulphur and apply it to the irritated parts the same as you would any cold cream.

For many years common hold sulphur has occupied a secure position in the practice of dermatology and cutaneous affections by reason of its parasite-destrorying property. It is not only parasiticide, but also antipruritic, antiseptic and remarkably healing in all irritable and inflammatory conditions of the skin. While not always effecting a permanent cure it never fails to instantly subdue the angry itching and irritation and heal the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

To Kill Limburger Scent.

A Pennsylvania cheesemaker is authority for the statement that it is the outside of limburger cheese that smells objectionably—that if this part is cut off in chunks, sliced and given a few seconds' immersion in hot water the smell will be destroyed, leaving the taste unimpaired. The inside of the cheese, he says, needs no treatment.

Peculiar Aversions.

Robert Boyle, the philosopher, could never overcome his aversion to the sound of water splashing from a pipe, and he has put on record the case of one of his servants, who could never bear hearing a knife being sharpened or a sheet of brown paper torn without bleeding at the gums.

DECIPHERS OLDEST WRITING.

Finds In It Curse to Drive Off Locusts 5915 Years Ago.

A number of ancient Sumerian tablets have just been deciphered by George A. Barton at the University of Pennsylvania museum.

One, which tells how a farmer rid his field of locusts and caterpillars, is dated 4000 B. C. and is the oldest piece of writing extant, according to officials of the museum. The farmer, Dr. Barton's translation says, called in a necromancer, who "broke a jar, cut open a sacrifice, a word of cursing he repeated, and the locusts and caterpillars fled." For this service he received a tall palm tree.

POMEROY SEES BALL GAME.

Notorious Slayer Had Not Seen Match In Forty Years.

From the window of his cell in state prison at Boston, Mass., Jesse Pomeroiy, a life prisoner, saw the other day his first game of baseball in forty years. The match was played between prison nines. Pomeroiy said that in the last game he saw several players were caught out in the first bound of a third strike.

Pomeroiy is one of the most notorious slayers in the history of the United States. His crimes were among the sensations of the last generation.

ALDERMEN NO ZOOLOGISTS.

Pay $512 Bounty and Finds Hawks' Heads Grew on Chickens.

William Stock of York, Pa., is in jail on forty-two charges of perjury and false pretense. It is said he passed off on the aldermen and justices of the peace chicken heads for those of hawks, rabbit heads for those of young foxes and rat heads for those of weasels, collecting state bounties amounting to $512.

After a consultation with a zoologist the county commissioners refused to pay Stock's last claim of $264 and caused his arrest.

GUNNER CRILEY TELLS OF HIS RECORD DIVE.

Says Descent of 288 Feet Was Delightful In Crystal Waters at Honolulu.

After his recovery from the results of the water pressure at so great a depth Chief Gunner's Mate Frank Criley, U. S. N., described his record dive to the sunken submarine F-4 in Honolulu harbor as one of the most delightful sensations and greatest pleasures of his life.

Criley went down 288 feet and was twelve minutes on the bottom at that depth. Then before he was well recovered he dived 229 feet to rescue Diver Loughman, who had become entangled in the lines. Criley was four days under the doctors' hands before he was well enough to talk much.

His feat set a world's record in deep sea diving. It was even more remarkable in that he went down in the ordinary diver's suit without Gunner Stillson's special air compression gear. The exertion demanded was tremendous, he admits. The previous record was Gunner's Mate Dredlind's 274 feet in Stillson's suit.

"I had never before dived in such water," he said. "It was wonderful. Things seemed clearer than in the air. Previously I had been down only in the muddy waters of the east. This was like going through an extraordinary picture."

"I could see the F-4 after I was down only a few feet. The bottom was like a beautiful beach, with pebbles and clean white sand. The light was so good that one could have taken photographs."

"There was no seaweed, no growth of any sort, and I saw no fish. Everything was so still it seemed unreal, like a staged scene, or painted as no scene ever could be."

"Stretched out across the slope lay the F-4, so dark and still. One had to stand and think before one realized what her position there meant."

"The water was warm and I got the feeling that, if necessary, I could have gone down 500 feet in it. All the same, this was the hardest job we have ever done."

PREFERRED LOVE TO RANK.

Hero of Old German Royal Romance Dies in California.

John Bricker, eighty years old, who, with his wife, eloped from Germany more than forty years ago, has just died at Santa Monica, Cal. For an act of bravery during the Austrian war Bricker was made a captain and a special medal was pinned on his breast by King William of Prussia, afterward emperor.

At the end of the war he met Miss Augusta Court, daughter of a member of the royal family, who was forbidden to marry out of the royal household. Placing love first the young woman ran off with her soldier lover.

The couple fled at night and went on board a sailing ship bound round the Horn of California. They settled in Santa Monica and for a living hunted wild birds.

GETS ORGAN TONES ON PIANO

French Inventor by Use of Magnet May Revolutionize Music.

A revolution in instrumental music is foreshadowed by the discovery of a French engineer, M. Baviere of Paris, that with the use of a magnet sustained sounds similar to those of the organ can be produced from the strings of the piano, violin, harp and guitar.

This sustained sound is said to be without a trace of hammering, scraping or jerkiness and the discovery is expected to affect not only the execution but also the composition of music.

WEALTHY, STOLE FOR LIVING

Two Women Even Purloined Chickens to Celebrate Sabbath.

Mrs. Rose Schissel and Mrs. Esther Cohen, two well to do New York women, have been sentenced to ten months each in the penitentiary for petty larceny.

Detective Frank Casassa said both had long careers as shoplifters, rarely buying even the necessities of life. Mrs. Schissel, he said, owned real estate in several sections of the city, but even stole chickens every Friday night to celebrate the Jewish Sabbath.

The women were the most elaborate shoplifting outfits he ever saw, consisting of false waists and double skirts with pockets manipulated by strings that enabled them to drop stolen articles whenever they were under suspicion in a store and pretend the goods had fallen from a counter. They had worked together for years and had been arrested frequently.

IN PRISON AT 102 YEARS OLD

Has $15,000, but Won't Pay Doctor Because Operation Failed.

Although Thomas Goggins, who claims to be 102 years old, is said to be worth at least $15,000 and admits himself that he has a few "little dollars" in the bank, he is locked up in the county jail at Syracuse, N. Y., for contempt of court and stubbornly refuses to pay a fine of $18 and costs levied by Judge William G. Cady.

Mr. Goggins' case is unusual and baffling. He is ill with an incurable malady, and the judgment against him was for the bill of Dr. George M. Price, who performed an operation on him in an effort to restore his health. He wouldn't pay, he said, because the operation was not successful.

SHIRT FOR 7-FOOT WAIST.

Costs 495 Pound Man $11 and Is Biggest Ever Made.

What is believed to be the biggest shirt ever made has been turned out by a factory at Parsons, Kan., for George W. Nicklor of Ames, Ia., who is the biggest man in that state and is said to possess the biggest waist of any man alive.

The shirt is cut with a waist which lacks one inch of being seven feet. The collar is twenty-three inches and the chest sixty-six inches, with a twenty-eight inch arm. The shirt is made of chevilot and will cost Nicklor $11.

Nicklor has turned down numerous vaudeville offers. He weighs 495 pounds and is five feet six inches tall.

TO RAISE "SACRED LEGION."

Vanzelou Says He Will Gather Greeks Here in America.

Greece's great statesman, ex-Premier Eleutherios Vanzelou, is coming to America, he says, to raise a "sacred legion" to fight for Greece in Asia Minor. Forced from office by a quarrel with the king, Vanzelou is unable at present to bring about Greece's intervention against Turkey, but he doesn't intend to retire from active life.

His sacred legion will number 50,000 men drawn from Asia Minor refugees, as well as Greeks in the United States. He will use Cyprus and Egypt as bases for his corps. It is planned, and will operate against Smyrna, Broussa and Saloniki.

Fire Engine's Beginning.

It was not until the close of the sixteenth century that the hand squirt was introduced into England, and they were extensively used in the great London fire in 1666. Soon after the commencement of the seventeenth century the Londoners perceived the convenience that would arise from fixing these squirts to a movable cart, and applying their power through the means of a lever, and the first engine thus obtained was considered a great mechanical achievement.

The Corn of Long Ago.

Many ways of cooking corn are known, but the simpler are the better. A sturdy race of pioneers thrived on mush and milk and corn pone and hoe cake. Civilization and luxury have led the children of these pioneers to look with disdain on corn, and to prefer to secure its great health-giving properties through other mediums. We have been taking our corn by way of pork and beef.—Maysville (Ky.) Bulletin.

Not There Because He Enjoys It.

"Look here," sternly demanded the police magistrate. "Didn't I tell you the last time you were here that I never wanted to see you again?" "Yassah, yo' honah, yo' did so!" replied Brother Slack. "And if yo' recussibly puhmit me to say it, I don't 'joy de sight o' yo' no mo' dan yo' does de sight o' me, sah!"—Kansas City Star.

Omit Egg Yolk When Billious.

People who suffer from biliousness will find that the elimination of the egg yolk from the usual breakfast dish will help relieve this trouble. Have the eggs cooked medium soft and have the yolk removed before serving. The whites contain all the essential tissue-building qualities and are more easily digested.

GENERAL ATTACK IN DARDANELLES

Allied Fleet and Army Combine in Movement.

SHIPS SHELL THE STRAITS

The Advance Continues Despite Serious Opposition, Says the Official British Bulletin.

London, April 27.—The following official announcement was given out in London:

"The general attack on the Dardanelles by the fleet and the army was resumed on Monday.

"The disembarkation of the army, covered by the fleet, began before sunrise at various points on the Gallipoli peninsula, and in spite of serious opposition from the enemy in strong entrenchments protected by barbed wire entanglements, was completely successful.

"Before nightfall large forces were established on shore.

"The landing of the army and the advance continue."

Recent intimations from London conceding the impossibility of taking Constantinople by a naval attack alone have been coupled with accounts from various sources of the collection of an Anglo-French expeditionary force, of which the English general, Sir Ian Hamilton, is understood to be in command, with General d'Amade serving under him in charge of the French contingent. This force has been assembling for some time in Egypt and elsewhere in eastern Mediterranean points, and last week came fragmentary announcements of the landing of detachments in the Gulf of Saros and the subsequent evacuation of Enos, Turkey's westernmost seaport.

According to a Copenhagen report the allies' plans contemplate a landing army of 300,000 men, half Russian and half Anglo-French. Paris and London reports, however, have dealt only with an Anglo-French army, about whose strength and numbers nothing has been allowed to transpire.

Private advices received in New York from London convey a report current in England that Earl Kitchener's new army to the number of 100,000 and even 200,000 men, is in the Aegean. It was supposed that these troops, which have been leaving English shores in large numbers, were going to the continent, but observers who have returned from the British front in France have commented on the fact that none of Kitchener's big army is there, and it is known that thousands of them have left England during the past six or eight weeks.

The allied fleet which for many weeks has been bombarding the forts at the western entrance of the forty-mile-long straits that guard Constantinople 200 miles away, has made little apparent progress and has sustained severe losses.

GERMANS REPULSED IN EAST

Petrograd Reports Successes Along Poland and Carpathian Lines.

Petrograd, April 27.—The following official communication was issued by the war office:

"During the night of April 24-25 German forces aggregating four two companies (200 men) to one battalion (1000 men) made several attempts to attack our advanced positions between Kalwarya and Ludwinow, in Russian Poland. All the attacks were easily repulsed by our fire. After one of the repulses the enemy fled in disorder.

"Our Alsea Mouretz aircraft on the morning of the 24th successfully attacked the station at Neidenburg, East Prussia, where their bombs caused a number of fires and destroyed a portion of the railway line.

"In the Carpathians the enemy recently has been increasing in volume his artillery fire on the whole front. He has apparently brought up fresh units of heavy artillery. During the night of the 24th-25th the enemy delivered a series of persistent attacks in the region of the Uzok pass, that we repulsed with rifle fire and hand grenades, inflicting very great losses on him.

"On the other sectors of our front there has been no change of importance. Artillery and rifle fire of varying intensity alternated at some points with minor outpost engagements."

Sick Woman Asphyxiated.

Phoenixville, Pa., April 27.—When the nurse who had been attending Mrs. Harry Rowe returned to the room in which the patient had been lying after a few minutes' absence she found Mrs. Rowe stretched across the floor. Calling for help, the nurse tried all means in her power to restore heart action, but failed. Mrs. Rowe attempted to arise and fell over a gas range connection, releasing it and permitting the fumes to flow into the room.

JAPAN EXPLAINS CHINA DEMANDS

Sends Detailed Account to Great Britain.

Washington, April 27.—The Japanese government has given to Great Britain a detailed explanation of the demands made upon China which, according to information obtainable in Washington, is said to have relieved apprehension in London as to the scope of the Japanese policy in China.

The report from Peking that the conferences had been resumed and that Japan now had presented twenty-four demands was received with much interest in Washington.

This list is virtually an amplification of the original twenty-one demands and includes even the demands for railroad concessions. It is understood, in territory where the lines would compete with British interests. The Japanese insist that the Chinese government accept the new list of demands in its entirety, but no time limit has been set.

China is making certain military preparations which have been described as "feeble."

Now that the subject has been discussed with Great Britain, the United States and other powers, some observers think Japan may have renewed the plan to obtain China's approval in principle to the demands.

With such an acceptance it is supposed Japan might not be disposed to press for a detailed agreement on many of the points, preferring to have the present negotiations stand as an expression to the world of Japan's interests in China.

TO SHELL CANADIAN PORTS

German Warships on Way, Says Letter to Interned Captain.

Portland, Ore., April 27.—Headed for the Atlantic coast of Canada is a German squadron bent on bombarding important cities and fortifications, according to a letter received by Captain Carl Brauch, master of the German bark Dalbek, interned here since July 23, from a friend who is a deck officer of the German navy.

"Eight days before the German fleet bombarded Scarborough, Hartlepool and other ports, I received a letter from the same friend, telling that the German fleet would strike for the British coast, and I thought the statement was laughable," said Captain Brauch. "Since it came to pass, I am convinced that the move of the squadron to the Canadian coast may not be a myth."

The letter to Captain Brauch has been on the way since March 24.

TRY TO SHOW T.R. AS INVISIBLE BOSS

Colonel Discussed Appointments With Leaders.

50 LETTERS READ IN COURT

Political Secrets Exposed When It Is Shown How Roosevelt Forced Nomination of Hughes For Governor.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 27.—Despite all cavilling and scoffing, Colonel Roosevelt had to admit that once he walked with the wicked and breakfasted with the unrighteous, not that he always accepted their ways nor weakly heeded their whispers; that was by no means revealed in the long cross-examination regarding his political intimacy with the easy boss (Platt).

It was shown, however, that he had not begun to separate the Jekylls and the Hydes in 1899, his first year as governor; and that he was at great pains to please Senator Platt, hastening to this place and that at Platt's suggestions or his own, for nice, quiet and comfortable chats over desirable legislation, who should be made judges or how messages to the legislature should deal with the trusts.

They met, the governor and the easy boss, most often at the Fifth Avenue hotel, where Platt lived, or at the home of Douglas Robinson.

But these conferences, said the colonel, in his ready and fluent explanations to the jury, did not mean that there was invisible government at work, such invisible government as he had accused Barnes of maintaining, but that the cause of righteousness and for the sake of substantial justice, it was necessary to recognize Platt and the organization to get popular measures through the legislature. He had to deal with Platt to make sure the will of the people was not defeated. Platt controlled the legislature. What could a man do?

The colonel's wrath stirred against chastisement, as William L. Barnum, of Syracuse, who took up the work of cross-examination left off by Mr. Ivins on Friday, reviewed bluntly and harshly the whole story of the colonel's relations with Senator Platt.

It was more difficult for him to preserve his smile when Barnum read probably fifty letters that showed very plainly how closely the governor and boss were working together in that year. Their whole import was to impress the jurors with the fact that Roosevelt never attempted a matter of importance without seeking Platt's views, and that frequently he acted as Platt suggested.

Political secrets popped to the surface when those letters were read. Some of the frankest possible comments regarding Hughes were exchanged between the leaders who were struggling to end his career, and the president, who was stubbornly sure that Hughes was the most available candidate.

Every line in the letters written by Barnes and Parsons to Roosevelt reveals how thoroughly the leaders detested Governor Hughes and how earnestly they tried to escape Roosevelt's indomitable dictum that Hughes it must be.

Even Parsons, who was supposed at the time to be not unfriendly to Hughes, was working with Barnes to change the colonel's mind. Roosevelt wouldn't have taken him if any other candidate had possessed the same strength. It hurt to take Hughes, but it might hurt more to take somebody else. That was his point of view.

He very nearly had a revolt on his hands, but he quelled the rebellious "made puppets out of them," as Parsons bitterly complained, and jammed through the nomination. No amount of argument or persuasion could move him.

BASE BALL TRUCE DECLARED BY LEADERS

Federals and the Big Leagues Reach Agreement.

Chicago, April 27.—While peace has not been declared between the forces of organized base ball and the Federal league, there is a truce in the warfare, and before next season opens it is expected that a truce will bring quiet to the national game for another decade at least.

The activities of the leaders of the two factions last week resulted in an agreement whereby the two sides will leave each other's players alone for the balance of this summer. With such an agreement in force, the opposing leaders believe it is only a short step to a declaration of peace.

Rumor says that the cause for setting together at the present time was a fear that Judge Landis might render a decision that would be a blow to the game. In order that the fighting leaders might have a chance to adjust their differences out of court the big decision has been held off.

MACK DONE WITH BAKER

Athletic Manager Now Bars Home Run King From Base Ball.

Boston, April 27.—"I'm through with Frank Baker as a ball player. He will never appear in an Athletic suit as long as I am connected with the team. And it is my intention at the present time not to allow Baker to become the property of any other team in the American league. I would not sell him for $1,000,000 in cash."

This is the decided and positive statement Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics. The last straw in the Baker-Mack episode was the fact that Baker played with the Upland team in the Delaware County League of Pennsylvania Saturday afternoon.

THREATEN HOLLY

Nearly Resort is Threatened by Forest Blaze.

Fire which broke out again in the South Mountain near Toland, has today spread over an area of eight hundred acres. It is making rapid progress in different directions despite the efforts of hundreds of men who are fighting it constantly.

The flames approached the lake at Mount Holly Park. The park is believed to be in danger for the second time within several days.

The efforts of the fire-fighters were concentrated for a time near Barnitz Station, where buildings were threatened. The flames approached close to the saw mill of A. C. Givler and the mill of J. Harvey Lime.

The Philadelphia clay works and the South Mountain mining works, near Mount Holly were in danger Monday afternoon and the employees have all deserted their usual work to help fight the flames.

Commissioner Conklin and Deputy Commissioner Williams will visit the Pine Grove, Caledonia and Mont Alto reservations this week to ascertain the damage done to State property.

Prepare For Big World Crisis, Wilson Warns United States

Incisive remarks made by President Wilson in his speech at the Associated Press luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York:

You deal in the raw material of opinion and, if my convictions have any validity, opinion ultimately governs the world.

The times behind us have been difficult. The times before us are likely to be more difficult, because whatever may be said about the present condition of the world's affairs it is clear that they are drawing rapidly to a crisis.

I am not now thinking so preposterous a thought as that we should sit in judgment upon them (the warring nations), but that we shall some day have to assist in reconstructing the processes of peace.

I am not speaking in a selfish spirit when I say that our whole duty, for the present, at any rate, is summed up in this motto, "America First!"

I try to put myself in the place of the man who does not know all the things that I know and ask myself what he would like the policy of this country to be.

Not the talkative man, not the partisan man, not the man that remembers first that he is a Republican or Democrat or that his parents were German or English, but who remembers first that the whole destiny of modern affairs centers largely upon his being an American first of all.

If I permitted myself to be a partisan in this present struggle I would be unworthy to represent

you. I am not saying that I am worthy to represent you, but I do claim this degree of worthiness—that before everything else I love America.

Let us think of America before we think of Europe, in order that America may be fit to be Europe's friend when the day of tested friendship comes. The test of friendship is getting ready to help both sides when the struggle is over.

The basis of neutrality is not indifference; it is not self-interest. The basis of neutrality is sympathy for mankind. It is fairness; it is good will at bottom; it is impartiality of spirit and judgment.

There is in some quarters a disposition to create distempers in this body politic. Men are saying that if we should go to war upon either side there will be a divided America—an abominable libel of ignorance!

My interest in the neutrality of America is not the petty desire to keep out of trouble. I do not want to walk around trouble. If any man wants a scrap that is an interesting scrap and worth while, I am his man. I warn him that he is not going to draw me into the scrap for his advertisement, but if he is looking for trouble—and I can help a little, why, then, I am in for it.

The world ought to know the truth, but the world ought not at this period of unstable equilibrium to be disturbed by rumor. We cannot afford to let the rumors of irresponsible persons and origins get into the atmosphere of the United States.

SOME FIGURES TO SHOW HOLD OF MOVIES.

More than $275,000,000 a year is spent in the United States on movies. Commodore J. Stuart Blackton says.

Rental paid for films amounts to $275,000,000 a year.

About $50,000,000 of capital is tied up in unreleased films.

Pictures made in a year would make a band that would go twice around the earth.

Not fewer than 11,000,000 people visit film shows daily in this country.

Between $15,000 and $20,000 is spent each evening for the films to provide the entertainment.

More than $120,000,000 is invested in the theater buildings.

IN MISERY BLESS STARS AND STRIPES.

Belgian Gratitude For Relief Seen by American Visitor.

James W. Bennett of the Roanoke (Va.) Times, the only person not connected with the commission for relief in Belgium to cross the Atlantic in one of the commission's steamers, has just returned. Mr. Bennett was purser of the Lynorta, which carried Virginia's cargo to the Belgians. In Belgium he made an automobile tour of the German occupied territory, visiting Malines, Dinant, Namur, Louvain, Liege, Brussels and Antwerp.

"There were terrible scenes wherever we went," he says. "I saw long lines of famished people waiting for food. Many of them were well dressed, and this made the sight all the more pitiable, for everything defining respectability but their clothes was absent. They had once been affluent, and there they were without means to obtain food. Their faces were lined with despair."

"The Belgians were not slow to exhibit their gratitude. The motor relief car was flying the stars and stripes, and many approached and stroked the emblem with affection."

WEALTHY, STOLE FOR LIVING

Two Women Even Purloined Chickens to Celebrate Sabbath.

Mrs. Rose Schissel and Mrs. Esther Cohen, two well to do New York women, have been sentenced to ten months each in the penitentiary for petty larceny.

Detective Frank Casassa said both had long careers as shoplifters, rarely buying even the necessities of life. Mrs. Schissel, he said, owned real estate in several sections of the city, but even stole chickens every Friday night to celebrate the Jewish Sabbath.

The women were the most elaborate shoplifting outfits he ever saw, consisting of false wigs and double skirts with pockets manipulated by strings that enabled them to drop stolen articles whenever they were under suspicion in a store and pretend the goods had fallen from a counter. They had worked together for years and had been arrested frequently.

IN PRISON AT 102 YEARS OLD

Has $15,000, but Won't Pay Doctor Because Operation Failed.

Although Thomas Goggins, who claims to be 102 years old, is said to be worth at least $15,000 and admits himself that he has a few "little dollars" in the bank, he is locked up in the county jail at Syracuse, N. Y., for contempt of court and stubbornly refuses to pay a fine of $18 and costs levied by Judge William G. Cady.

Mr. Goggins' case is unusual and baffling. He is ill with an incurable malady, and the judgment against him was for the bill of Dr. George M. Price, who performed an operation on him in an effort to restore his health.

He wouldn't pay, he said, because the operation was not successful.

SHIRT FOR 7-FOOT WAIST.

Costs 495 Pound Man $11 and Is Biggest Ever Made.

What is believed to be the biggest shirt ever made has been turned out by a factory at Parsons, Kan., for George W. Nicklor of Ames, Ia., who is the biggest man in that state and is said to possess the biggest waist of any man alive.

The shirt is cut with a waist which lacks one inch of being seven feet. The collar is twenty-three inches and the chest sixty-six inches, with a twenty-eight inch arm. The shirt is made of chevrot and will cost Nicklor $11.

Nicklor has turned down numerous vaudeville offers. He weighs 495 pounds and is five feet six inches tall.

TO RAISE "SACRED LEGION."

Venezelos Says He Will Gather Greeks Here in America.

Greece's great statesman, ex-Premier Eleutherios Venezelos, is coming to America, he says, to raise a "sacred legion" to fight for Greece in Asia Minor. Forced from office by a quarrel with the king, Venezelos is unable at present to bring about Greece's intervention against Turkey, but he doesn't intend to retire from active life.

His sacred legion will number 50,000 men drawn from Asia Minor refugees, as well as Greeks in the United States. He will use Cyprus and Egypt as bases for his corps, it is planned, and will operate against Smyrna, Broussa and Saloniki.

Quite Natural.

It is a curious thing that the country which invented the "quick lunch" also prides itself on the scientific study of foods and their digestibility.—London Spectator.

Spring's Joy

As tender little leaves appear. Each shoot its happiness completes. And then he asks as you draw near, "Say, are those radishes or beets?"

Some of his seeds have failed to sprout. The reason why he doesn't know. For contra, he sees starting out. Some seeds he sowed a year ago.

NEW WIRELESS CAR OF ARMY IS MARVEL.

Can Face Any Sort of Land Surface and Has Eighty Foot Mast.

A traveling wireless station that can do almost anything but shin up a telegraph pole is the latest contribution of Uncle Sam's efficient army officers to the defense forces of this country.

Successful experiments just concluded at Fort Myer show that "radio tractor No. 2" can even travel over the fields when necessary, whereas its predecessor, No. 1, had to confine its peregrinations to the highways.

Radio tractor No. 2 consists of a motor truck that drives, brakes and steers on all four wheels and carries a knocked down army field wireless set. The mast that supports the antenna is eighty feet high when extended and comprises eight sections of light tubing that are strapped to one side of the truck when not in use.

The wireless outfit has a sending range of 250 miles under ordinary conditions and an almost illimitable receiving range. It is a great improvement on the old hand operated apparatus that is laboriously toted around on the backs of three pack mules. Moreover, it is not liable to stampede under fire.

The power to operate the sending apparatus is furnished by the truck's own motor and is made available by simply shifting a lever. "This is a great improvement over the old hand operated sender and much more powerful. The electric generator is rated at two kilowatts or, roughly, twenty-two 'man power'."

NELSON ESTATE FOR PUBLIC.

William H. Nelson, editor and owner of the Kansas City Star, left a farm of 1,750 acres in Jackson county, Mo., to be a model farm for thirty years for the purpose of instructing neighbors in stock raising and farming. On the death of both Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Kirkwood, the editor's daughter, the management of the property is to be placed in the hands of a board of trustees.

The trustees are required to set aside for each of the children of Mrs. Kirkwood, if any, property of the reasonable value of $1,000,000. The residue is to be managed by "The William Rockhill Nelson Trust," to purchase works of art which will contribute to the enjoyment of the public generally.

EATS NOVEL BREAKFAST.

Farmer Enjoys Two Ostrich Eggs Almost Every Morning.

Louis Sands of Spring Lake, Mich., enjoys the distinction of being the only man in the United States who sits down to two soft boiled ostrich eggs for breakfast every morning. Not every morning in the year, maybe, but every morning when the ostriches are laying well. An ostrich egg is about the size of a grapefruit and is pretty well stuffed with meat. Two or three make "some breakfast."

Mr. Sands owns a herd of ostriches.

BALL THRILL KILLS WOMAN.

Excitement at Game Proves Fatal to Enthusiastic Fan.

In the crowd at the New York Polo grounds to see the game between the Giants and Phillies was Mrs. Susanna Wisniewsky, wife of Edmund Wisniewsky, a public accountant, and when the visiting team made two runs in the second inning excitement ran so high she sank back unconscious. Dr. Oscar Leisner, physician at the grounds, found her dead from heart failure.

Mrs. Wisniewsky was forty years old and an enthusiastic baseball fan.

BLOWS OUT HIS HEART.

Miner, Brooding Over Europe's War, Uses Dynamite to Kill Himself.

As a result of brooding over the war in Europe, Joseph Hansock, a young German working as a miner at Homer, Pa., literally blew out his heart.

Dressed in his best clothes, Hansock attached a fuse to a stick of dynamite, touched a match to it and pressed the explosive close to his heart. His chest was shattered.

New Styles For Mexican Judges. President Gonzalez Garza has issued a decree prescribing the dress that must be habitually worn by judges.

Someone has said that one may see the fulfillment of any desire if it is linked with will. There must be purposeful, concentrated willing all along the line to make any issue successful.

SULPHUR DRIES UP ECZEMA AND STOPS ITCHING

This old time skin healer is used just like any cold cream.

Sulphur, says a renowned dermatologist, just common hold sulphur made into a thick cream will soothe and heal the skin when irritated and broken out with Eczema or any form of eruption. The moment it is applied all itching ceases and after two or three applications the Eczema disappears, leaving the skin clear and smooth.

He tells Eczema sufferers to get from any good pharmacy an ounce of hold sulphur and apply it to the irritated parts the same as you would any cold cream.

For many years common hold sulphur has occupied a secure position in the practice of dermatology and cutaneous affections by reason of its parasite-destroying property. It is not only parasiticide, but also antipruritic, antiseptic and remarkably healing in all irritable and inflammatory conditions of the skin. While not always effecting a permanent cure it never fails to instantly subdue the angry itching and irritation and heal the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

To Kill Limburger Scent.

A Pennsylvania cheesemaker is authority for the statement that it is the outside of limburger cheese that smells objectionably—that if this part is cut off in chunks, sliced and given a few seconds' immersion in hot water the smell will be destroyed, leaving the taste unimpaired. The inside of the cheese, he says, needs no treatment.

Peculiar Aversions.

Robert Boyle, the philosopher, could never overcome his aversion to the sound of water splashing from a pipe, and he has put on record the case of one of his servants, who could never bear hearing a knife being sharpened or a sheet of brown paper torn without bleeding at the gums.

Failures. Failing and being a failure are two entirely different things, and there are people who wring more success out of their misfortune than others do out of all the advantages showered upon them. It is not falling but staying down that makes a failure.

DECIPHERS OLDEST WRITING

Finds in It Curse to Drive Off Locusts 5915 Years Ago.

A number of ancient Sumerian tablets have just been deciphered by George A. Barton at the University of Pennsylvania museum.

One, which tells how a farmer rid his field of locusts and caterpillars, is dated 4000 B. C., and is the oldest piece of writing extant, according to officials of the museum. The farmer, Dr. Barton's translation says, called in a necromancer, who "broke a jar, cut open a sacrifice, a word of cursing he repeated, and the locusts and caterpillars fled." For this service he received a tall palm tree.

POMEROY SEES BALL GAME.

Notorious Slayer Had Not Seen Match in Forty Years.

From the window of his cell in state prison at Boston, Mass., Jesse Pomeroy, a life prisoner, saw the other day his first game of baseball in forty years. The match was played between prison nines. Pomeroy said that in the last game he saw several players were caught out in the first bound of a third strike.

Pomeroy is one of the most notorious slayers in the history of the United States. His crimes were among the sensations of the last generation.

William Stock of York, Pa., is in jail on forty-two charges of perjury and false pretense. It is said he passed off on the aldermen and justices of the peace chicken heads for those of hawks, rabbit heads for those of young foxes and rat heads for those of weasels, collecting state bounties amounting to $512.

After a consultation with a zoologist the county commissioners refused to pay Stock's last claim of $264 and caused his arrest.

GUNNER CRILEY TELLS OF HIS RECORD DIVE.

Says Descent of 288 Feet Was Delightful in Crystal Waters at Honolulu.

After his recovery from the results of the water pressure at so great a depth Chief Gunner's Mate Frank Criley, U. S. N., described his record dive to the sunken submarine F-4 in Honolulu harbor as one of the most delightful sensations and greatest pleasures of his life.

Criley went down 288 feet and was twelve minutes on the bottom at that depth. Then before he was well recovered he dived 220 feet to rescue Diver Loughman, who had become entangled in the lines. Criley was four days under the doctors' hands before he was well enough to talk much.

His feat set a world's record in deep sea diving. It was even more remarkable in that he went down in the ordinary diver's suit without Gunner Stillson's special air compression gear. The exertion demanded was tremendous, he admits. The previous record was Gunner's Mate Dredlshad's 274 feet in Stillson's suit.

"I had never before dived in such water," he said. "It was wonderful. Things seemed clearer than in the air. Previously I had been down only in the muddy waters of the east. This was like going through an extraordinary picture."

"I could see the F-4 after I was down only a few feet. The bottom was like a beautiful beach, with pebbles and clean white sand. The light was so good that one could have taken photographs."

"There was no seaweed, no growth of any sort, and I saw no fish. Everything was so still it seemed unreal, like a staged scene, or painted as no scene ever could be."

"Stretched out across the slope lay the F-4, so dark and still. One had to stand and think before one realized what her position there meant."

"The water was warm and I got the feeling that, if necessary, I could have gone down 500 feet in it. All the same, this was the hardest job we have ever done."

PREFERRED LOVE TO RANK.

Hero of Old German Royal Romance Dies in California.

John Brickner, eighty years old, who, with his wife, eloped from Germany more than forty years ago, has just died at Santa Monica, Cal. For an act of bravery during the Austrian war Brickner was made a captain and a special medal was pinned on his breast by King William of Prussia, afterward emperor.

At the end of the war he met Miss Augusta Court, daughter of a member of the royal family, who was forbidden to marry out of the royal household. Placing love first the young woman ran off with her soldier lover.

The couple fled at night and went on board a sailing ship bound round the Horn of California. They settled in Santa Monica and for a living hunted wild birds.

GETS ORGAN TONES ON PIANO

French Inventor by Use of Magnet May Revolutionize Music.

A revolution in instrumental music is foreshadowed by the discovery of a French engineer, M. Baviere of Paris, that with the use of a magnet sustained sounds similar to those of the organ can be produced from the strings of the piano, violin, harp and guitar.

This sustained sound is said to be without a trace of hammering, scraping or jerkiness and the discovery is expected to affect not only the execution but also the composition of music.

SYNOPSIS.

Christopher Bellew, a tenderfoot, starts for the Klondike in a gold rush and plucky works at the back breaking toil of packing freight.

He meets a beautiful girl, Joy Gastell, deserts his own party, and he and Shorty, a new acquaintance, hire out to two wealthy prospectors. Joy has nicknamed him "Smoke."

Smoke and Shorty befriend a man named Brock and nearly perish in attempting to cross Lake Lebarge because of the uselessness of their employers.

Smoke and Shorty take command by force and get through to Dawson City, where they are discharged. On Brock's tip they stampede for Squaw Creek.

They overtake Joy Gastell and her father. To help the Sea Lion crowd Joy treacherously leads them away from Squaw Creek.

Smoke saves the girl's feet from freezing. He and Shorty by mistake jump up miner's claim and lose it. Then Smoke finds Surprise lake, the bottom of which is covered with gold.

Smoke is shot at, witnesses the murder of a miner by the unknown marksmen and is arrested for murder himself.

Brock shows a Surprise lake nugget, the impromptu court is stampeded, and Smoke's life is saved. Smoke wins money at roulette.

He continues to win, and the gamblers buy him off. His system was based on the discovery that the roulette wheel was warped.

Prompted by Joy Gastell, Smoke enters a race for a million dollar claim against some of the best dog mushers.

At a critical moment Joy supplies Smoke with a fresh dog team, and he runs a dead heat with Big Olaf for the claim.

Smoke goes to Surprise lake. He falls into a crevasse in a glacier, and a miner, Carson, makes heroic efforts to rescue him.

Smoke cuts a rope to save Carson, falls himself and is caught in a pocket below, from which he is rescued by Carson and Joy.

CHAPTER XV.

The Starving Tribe.

THE way led steeply up through deep, powdery snow that was unmarked by sled track or moccasin impression. Smoke, in the lead, pressed the fragile crystals down under his fat, short snowshoes. The task required lungs and muscle, and he dug himself into it with all his strength.

Behind, on the surface he packed, strained the string of six dogs, the steam jets of their breathing attesting their labor and the lowness of the temperature. Between the wheel dog and the sled pulled Shorty, his weight divided between the guiding gee pole and the haul, for he was pulling with the dogs. Every half hour he and Smoke exchanged places, for the snowshoe work was even more arduous than that of the gee pole.

This was their sixth day out from the lively camp of Muclic, on the Yukon. And now they were breasting the big divide past the Bald Buttes, where the way would lead them down Porcupine creek to the middle reaches of Milk river. Higher up Milk river, it was fairly rumpled, were deposits of copper. And this was their goal—a hill of pure copper half a mile to the right and up the first creek after Milk river issued from a deep gorge to flow across a heavily timbered stretch of bottom.

Smoke was in the lead, and the small scattered spruce trees were becoming scarcer and smaller when he saw one, dead and bone dry, that stood in their path. There was no need for speech. His glance to Shorty was acknowledged by a stentorian "Whoo!" The dogs stood in the traces till they saw

Shorty begin to undo the sled lashings and Smoke attack the dead spruce with an ax, whereupon the animals dropped in the snow and curled into balls, the bush of each tail curved to cover four padded feet and an ice rimmed muzzle. In twenty minutes from the time they halted the meal was ready to eat.

"About forty below," Shorty mumbled through a mouthful of beans. "Hope it don't get colder—or warmer neither. It's just right for trail breaking."

Smoke did not answer. His own mouth full of beans, he had glanced to glance at the dead dog lying half a dozen feet away. That gray, frosty wolf was gazing at him with the infinite wistfulness and yearning that glimmer and haze so often in the eyes of northland dogs. Smoke knew it well, but never got over the unfathomable wonder of it.

As if to shake off the hypnotism he set down his plate and coffee cup, went to the sled and began opening the dried fish sack.

"Hey!" Shorty expostulated. "What're you doin'?"

"Breaking all law, custom, precedent and trail usage," Smoke replied. "I'm going to feed the dogs in the middle of the day—just this once. Bright there has been talking to me, telling me all unfeeling things with those eyes of him."

Shorty laughed skeptically. "Oh, if it's a hunch, go to it. A man's always got to follow his hunches."

"It isn't a hunch, Shorty. Bright just sort of got on my imagination for a couple of twists. He told me more in one minute with those eyes of his than I could read in the books in a thousand years. His eyes were a-crawl with the secrets of life. They were just squirming and wiggling there. The trouble is I almost got them, and then I didn't. I'm no wiser than I was before, but I was near them."

"Belled down into simple American, you got a hunch," Shorty insisted. "Somethin's goin' to happen before the day is out. You'll see. An' them dried fish'll have a bearing."

"You've got to show me," said Smoke.

"No, I ain't. The day'll take care of itself an' show you. Now, listen to what I'm tellin' you. I got a hunch myself out of your hunch. I'll bet eleven ounces against three ornery toothpicks I'm right."

"You bet the toothpicks, and I'll bet the ounces," Smoke returned.

"Nope. That'd be plain robbery. I win. I know a hunch when it tickles me. Before the day's out somethin' 'll happen, an' them fish'll have a meanin'."

An hour later they cleared the divide, dipped down past the Bald Buttes through a sharp elbow canyon and took the steep, open slope that dropped into Porcupine creek. Shorty, in the lead, stopped abruptly, and Smoke whooped the dogs. Beneath them, coming up, was a procession of humans, scattered and draggled, a quarter of a mile long.

"They move like it was a funeral," Shorty noted.

"They've no dogs," said Smoke.

"Yep; there's a couple of men pullin' on a sled."

"See that fellow fall down? There's somethin' the matter, Shorty, and there must be 200 of them."

"Look at 'em stagger as if they was soused. There goes another."

"It's a whole tribe. There are children there."

"Smoke, I win," Shorty proclaimed. "A hunch is a hunch, an' you can't beat it. There she comes. Look at her—surge! up like a lot of corpses."

The mass of Indians at sight of the two men had raised a weird cry of joy and accelerated its pace.

"They're sure tolerable woozy," commented Shorty. "See 'em fallin' down in lumps an' bunches."

"Look at the face of that first one," Smoke said. "It's starvation—that's what's the matter with them. They've eaten their dogs."

"What'll we do? Run for it?"

"And leave the sled and dogs?" Smoke demanded reproachfully.

"They'll sure eat us if we don't. They look hungry enough for it. Hello, old skeeziks! What's wrong with you? Don't look at that dog that way. No cookin' pot for him—savvy?"

The fore-runners were arriving and crowding about them, moaning and plainting in an unfamiliar jargon. To Smoke the picture was grotesque and horrible. It was famine unmistakable. Their faces, hollow cheeked and skin stretched, were so many death's heads. More and more arrived and crowded about until Smoke and Shorty were hemmed in by the wild crew. Their ragged garments of skin and fur were cut and slashed away, and Smoke knew the reason for it when he saw a wizened child on a squaw's back that sucked and chewed a strip of filthy fur.

"Keep off there—keep back!" Shorty yelled, falling back on English after futile attempts with the little Indian he did know.

Bucks and squaws and children tottered and swayed on shaking legs and continued to urge in, their mad eyes swimming with weakness and burning with ravenous desire. A woman, moaning, staggered past Shorty and fell with spread and grasping arms on the sled. An old man followed her, panting and gasping, with trembling hands striving to cast off the sled lashings and get at the grub sacks beneath. A young man with a naked knife tried to rush in, but was flung back by Smoke. The whole mass pressed in upon them, and the fight was on.

At first Smoke and Shorty shoved and thrust and threw back. Then they used the butt of the dog whip and their fists on the food and crowd. And all this against a background of moaning and wailing women and children. Here and there in a dozen places the sled lashings were cut. Men crawled in on their bellies, regardless of a rain of kicks and blows, and tried to drag out the grub. These had to be picked up bodily and flung back. And such was their weakness that they fell continually under the slightest pressure or shove. Yet they made no attempt to injure the two men who defended the sled.

It was the utter weakness of the Indians that saved Smoke and Shorty from being overborne. In five minutes the wall of upstanding, on-struggling Indians had been changed to heaps of fallen ones, that moaned and gibbered in the snow and cried and sniveled as their staring, swimming eyes focused on the grub that meant life to them and that brought the slaver to their lips. And behind it all arose the wailing of the women and children.

"This is terrible," Smoke muttered. "I'm all but up." Shorty recoiled, measured by his capacity for exertion. "I can get there tomorrow night," he announced.

"All right," Shorty acquiesced cheerfully. "An, I'll stay an' be eaten."

"But I'm going to take one fish each for the dogs," Smoke explained, "and one meal for myself."

"An' you'll sure need it if you make Muclic tomorrow night."

Smoke, through the medium of Carluk, stated the program. "Make fires, long fires, plenty fires," he concluded. "Plenty Boston man stop Muclic, Boston man much good. Boston man plenty grub. Five sleeps I come back plenty grub. This man, his name Shorty, very good friend of mine. He stop here. He big boss—savvy?"

Carluk nodded and interpreted. "All grub stop here. Shorty, he give 'm grub. He boss—savvy?"

Carluk interpreted, and nods and guttural cries of agreement proceeded from the men.

Smoke returned and managed until the full swing of the arrangement was under way. Those who were able crawled or staggered in the collecting of hewwood. Long Indian fires were built that accommodated all. Shorty, aided by a dozen assistants, with a short club handy for the rapping of hungry knuckles, plunged into the cooking.

First, a tiny piece of bacon was distributed all around and, next, a spoonful of sugar to cloy the edge of their razor appetites. Soon on a circle of fires drawn about Shorty many pots of beans were boiling, and he, with a wrathful eye for what he called the renegades, was trying and apportioning the thinnest of flapjacks.

"Me for the big cookin'," was his farewell to Smoke. "You just keep a-hikin'. Trot all the way there an' run all the way back. It'll take you today an' tomorrow to get there, and you can't be back inside three days more. Tomorrow they'll eat the last of the dogfish, an' then there'll be nary a scrap for three days. You gotta keep a-comin', Smoke; you gotta keep a-comin'."

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Rube Marquard of the New York Giants.

Rube Marquard, one time sensational pitcher for the New York Giants, must better his last season's performance if he hopes to win for John McGraw. During the spring training the south paw was slow getting into shape, and unless he comes back strong as the season advances McGraw will probably can him. Marquard's best season was in 1912, when he won nineteen straight games for the Giants. He also had another good year in 1913, but failed to win a game in the world series. Last winter Marquard jumped to the Federal league, but jumped back to the Giants before the season opened. Rube is a native of Cleveland and is twenty-six years old. He first played professional ball with the Canton club of the Central league, going thence to the Indianapolis club of the American association. McGraw bought him from the latter club for $11,000 in 1908. He was with the New Yorks for three years before he began to pitch winning ball. Then he came out and was one of the chief factors in winning the pennant for the New Yorks in 1912.

Tris Speaker Hard to Pitch To.

According to Bill Steen of the Cleveland Naps, Tris Speaker of the Boston Red Sox is the hardest batter in the league to pitch to regardless of the fact that Donie Bush of Detroit draws more passes than any player in the world and on the strength of his bases on balls record is regarded as the toughest bird in the business for an American league pitcher to work on.

"Speaker won't strike at a ball on the inside, and he slams balls on the outside down the foul line at a mile a minute. He hits 'em when they are over. I'd sooner pitch to Crawford, Collins, Cobb or Baker any day than to Speaker," says Steen.

"Crawford and Cobb are hard to fool. They show their greatest weakness in going after slow balls."

Avoid Conflicting Dates.

Conflicts between the American league and American association in Cleveland will be avoided this year by transferring several of the games which the association ordinarily would play in Cleveland to some other city.

A whole series in May was transferred from Cleveland to Columbus and another from Cleveland to Milwaukee in September. The Memorial day double header, which under usual conditions would be played in Cleveland, was transferred to Indianapolis.

Won All Contests.

The New York Nationals' basketball team, which made a tour from New York to San Francisco recently, returned home with a good record. The team is composed of the following players: Schmeck and Smyth, forwards; Ruckert, center and captain; Ripley and Brunner, guards, and Bryan, utility. They played forty-four games and won all of the contests.

Red Sox Fear Only Detroit.

Mike Finn, last year manager of the Memphis club and now attached to the Detroit payroll as a scout, has come out with the declaration that the Boston club already has it figured that the pennant is all but in its grasp and that it believes it has only Detroit to beat to assure this result.

HEARS BIERCE IS WITH KITCHENER

Daughter of Soldier-Journalist Thought Dead Gets Letter.

DISAPPEARED IN MEXICO.

Long Given Up For Lost—Aiding the Allies, Says Bloomington Report. New Seventy-three Years Old—Career Reads Like Romance—Brevetted For Bravery in Field.

Major Ambrose Bierce, the author and journalist, who has been sought by his family for over a year, has been found. The mystery of his disappearance was cleared up by the receipt of a letter from him by his daughter, Mrs. Helen Cowden of Bloomington, Ill.

This brought the surprising information that her father was a member of the staff of Lord Kitchener and was aiding in the recruiting service in London. He left Mexico early last fall. Major Bierce wrote that he was in good health.

The state department in Washington has been engaged since last fall in trying to find Major Bierce in Mexico. He was thought to have been murdered there while procuring material for a book on conditions in Mexico.

Bierce's Romantic Career.

Ambrose Bierce was born in Ohio in 1842. He served as a line officer throughout the civil war and received the brevet rank of major for bravery on the field.

As a journalist he wrote of peace and the ways of civilians until a war stirred some corner of the earth and then he took to writing tales of soldiers. One of his most successful books, "Tales of Soldiers and Civilians," dealt with companions in arms he had met during the civil war. The book was popular both in America and Europe, as it depicted the actual conditions encountered on the firing line by men who had enlisted.

Major Bierce was living quietly in retirement in Washington when the American army started on the move toward the Mexican border. He heard the call as did many other men of the writing profession who had been in previous wars as correspondents, and he departed for points he thought an American invasion might later reach.

In September, 1914, the state department received a formal request to help in ascertaining the whereabouts of Major Bierce. The request was from a California friend, who transmitted it through Secretary of Interior Lane.

Washington Starts Search.

The state department telegraphed to John R. Silliman, an American consular officer in Mexico, to institute a search for the missing writer. Secretary of War Garrison cabled instructions to General Funston and other American army officers in Mexico to assist in the search.

The last trace of him that the investigators could find located him in Chihuahua City in December, 1913. At that time a battle was impending between the federals and Constitutionalists. A report persisting in Chihuahua City was to the effect that Major Bierce started for his former home in California just before the battle.

When no word was heard of him for eight months literary men took up his case on the supposition that he had in some strange manner lost his life.

Bierce likes to tell this story on himself:

While in San Francisco he visited the new house of an old friend, a gentleman of Irish extraction. The hostess evidently took pride in the house, the furnishings of which were new and beautiful and gave every evidence of taste and refinement. Mr. Bierce, who has an eye for the beautiful, has unstinted praise for everything he saw.

"But," he said, "I am sorry to see that your house, beautiful as it is, lacks one ornament which no Irish house should be without."

"What is that?" she asked, unsuspectingly.

"A pig," replied Mr. Bierce, with a satisfied chuckle.

The hostess' eyes sparkled.

"It did," she said indignantly, "but you have supplied the want."

Now It's Spring

The dust is out of rugs and drapes and curtains—not a thing escapes; it's wiped from table, shelf and chair. And scattered broadcast in the air.

The smell of soap is prevalent. And winter clothes away are sent; the home is cheerless—mother feels no interest in getting meals.

Now father's brought the screens upstairs to paint them and to make repairs; he has an air of haste, to save that in speech he's somewhat rude.

Helen, in fear of sultry days, has awning up to shut the rays of sunlight out, and now her room is filled with an unearthly gloom.

Now brother Tom has felt the call to clean things, so he'll overhaul his cabinet of snakes—for years The source of mother's wildest fears.

And even Sue, that languid maid, has been compelled to lend her aid; she's rendered service, goodness knows, By burning pictures of her beaux.

GERMANS LED BY VON HINDENBURG

Field Marshal in Command at Ypres Battle.

TEUTON LOSSES ARE HEAVY

The Kaiser Said to Be on Way to Yser Front—Allies Check Invaders' Attacks.

London, April 27.—What some military critics are inclined to pronounce the "greatest battle of the war" is now under way on the Yser canal. Official reports are both meager and contradictory, but it generally is believed in London that the Germans again are making desperate efforts to break through to the French channel ports.

Some such recrudescence of the German offensive has been anticipated by war experts, but this movement, forestalling the long predicted allied offensive, comes as a distinct shock to the general public.

It is impossible as yet to get a clear idea of the extent of the German movement, but some special dispatches to London papers describe it as so important that the Germans are even credited with bringing Field Marshal von Hindenburg from the east to conduct the operations, and Emperor William himself is reported as proceeding to the Yser front.

The French war office in its official report says:

"In Belgium two German attacks moving out from Paschendale and from Brodeleinde were checked by the British troops. The enemy thereupon bombarded Ypres with violence. Our activities are being continued along the Yser canal.

"On the heights of the Meuse the fighting is developing. The attack on the Calonne trench, reported Sunday, was checked by our counter attack and the enemy driven back. He subsequently made another attack further to the east in the direction of St. Remy, evidently striving to recapture Les Eparges. A violent attack, preceded by a fierce bombardment, took place shortly after this movement on the eastern slopes of the position at Les Eparges, but the German attack resulted in failure."

Five thousand prisoners, including 1000 Canadians, have been taken by the Germans in Flanders, according to the official report from the German general staff.

Berlin denies the allies' claim that Lizerne has been recaptured, declaring that this town, as well as land taken on the east side of the Ypres canal, are still in the hands of the Germans.

Meanwhile there remains no doubt that the precipitate advance of the Germans, after a liberal use of bombs filled with asphyxiating gases, has been checked and the Kaiser's forces have been driven back in places.

From Paris comes news that the entire allied line north of Ypres is again on the offensive and is forcing the Germans to retire from portions of their newly gained ground.

Holland has heard that the German advance has been stopped at every point, that the loss in killed and wounded has been almost unbearable for the Kaiser's army, but that in face of this fact reserve troops continued to be sent to the battle front in the hope that the forward dash may be resumed.

1000 CANADIANS CAPTURED

80 Officers and 1000 Men Killed or Wounded in Big Battle.

Berlin, April 27.—In the official statement given out by the German general staff headquarters it was announced that more than 1000 Canadians had been captured in the fighting around Ypres, Belgium.

Canadian Casualties Heavy.

Ottawa, April 27.—That the Canadian division was hotly engaged on Thursday, Friday and Saturday last is indicated by a list of 80 casualties among officers alone—21 killed and 59 wounded.

The list is incomplete, as there are no artillery officers mentioned, though a battery of Canadian six-inch guns was taken by the German and later recaptured.

It is believed that when the list of casualties among the non-commissioned officers and men is received the three days' fighting will show more than a thousand Canadians killed and wounded.

Diving Injury Fatal.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 27.—John Shackelford, sixteen years old, champion boy golfer of New Jersey, died at the city hospital after an operation to relieve an injury to his spine, suffered in a dive in a swimming match. He was the only grandson of Captain John L. Young, the "amusement king," and would have been one of his principal heirs.

Big Orders For Powder.

Wilmington, Del., April 27.—Agents of the allies are reported to have completed a deal here for explosives calling for $12,000,000. The agents have been working under cover and registered under the names of James L. Livingston and George Folkes.

KRONPRINZ WILHELM INTERNED BY CAPTAIN

German Raider Decides to Stay in United States.

Washington, April 27.—Collector of Customs Hamilton at Newport News, Va., telephoned Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Peters that Captain Kronprinz Wilhelm, the German cruiser, had decided to intern.

The notice of Captain Thierfelder to Collector Hamilton, which the latter read over the telephone to Mr. Peters, follows:

"Herewith I have to officially inform you that I intern. Awaiting your further orders, I am, yours respectfully, Thierfelder, Captain, Lieutenant Commander."

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt later announced that the German raider was interned at Newport News.

JOHN BUNNY IS DEAD

Phenomenal Rise of Comedian, Who Gained Celebrity on Films.

New York, April 27.—John Bunny, the moving picture comedian, died of Bright's disease at his Brooklyn home. Bunny was fifty-two years old. He was born in New York and educated in St. James parochial school, Brooklyn. All the other members of his family were sailors, but Bunny took to the stage. He was a legitimate actor for nearly twenty-six years.

In 1910 he tried for a job in the "movies." He wasn't wanted by the managers until he went to see the Vitagraph company. Then he was hired at $40 a week as an experiment. In less than three years Bunny's salary was advanced to a point where it was larger than that paid to the president of the United States.

PEACE DELEGATES BALKED

British Order Prevents 40 American Women Getting to Holland.

London, April 27.—The steamer Noordam, with forty American women delegates to The Hague Peace Congress among its passengers, is anchored in the Downs, unable to obtain permission to proceed up the channel to Rotterdam.

Jane Addams appealed to United States Ambassador Page, urging him to enlist the aid of the American government to secure the release of the marooned delegates and enable them to arrive at The Hague in time for the conference, which will open tomorrow.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

HOW TO COOK MUSHROOMS.

A VERY simple way to cook them is to bake them. Wash the mushrooms, removing the stems and peel them, then drop into ice water containing a few drops of lemon juice. This will prevent them from darkening while the last ones are being peeled. After all are peeled dry them on a cloth, butter a baking pan and place the mushrooms in it underside up. In each mushroom put about a half teaspoonful butter and a few drops lemon juice, then sprinkle all with salt, pepper and nutmeg. Let them bake for half an hour.

In the meantime chop the peel and stems and boil these in a half pint of good stock. Thicken the stock with a tablespoonful of flour and one of butter to make a sauce and pour this over the mushrooms, when the latter are taken from the oven. A pound of mushrooms prepared in this way makes an exceptionally good accompaniment for a broiled beefsteak, and they should be poured over it as soon as the steak is taken from the broiler.

Broiled mushrooms on toast make a very satisfactory entree. Large mushrooms should be chosen for this dish. After the stems and peel have been removed, dip the mushrooms in oil or in butter, season with salt and pepper and broil. Chop the stems, as suggested above, fry these lightly in butter, add a little maitre d'hotel sauce and spread over the mushrooms and serve on slices of toast. If one wishes to make this a little more elaborate, the toast may first be spread with fried and mashed chicken livers or with pate de foie gras.

Mushrooms in glass bells make perhaps the most elegant mushroom entree possible.

Peel and drain a pound of fresh mushrooms, saute them for six or seven minutes in butter, seasoning with a level teaspoonful of salt and a half teaspoonful of pepper. From thin slices of bread cut six rounds of a size to fit under the bells. Toast on one side. Butter the six nappies and place the rounds, toasted side down, on them. Cover with the mushrooms, which have been sauteed for one minute in melted butter, then cook ten minutes in a cupful of cream. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and a dash of nutmeg. Pour the cream over the mushrooms and put on the bells. Set in the oven for twenty minutes, then serve without removing the bells.

The so called "bells" in which this dish is served are in reality bell or dome shaped covers made of fireproof glass. They are to be used with fireproof china nappies, which are sold in a few high class shops under the name of mushroom nappies. These can be bought either in fireproof white French china or in a brown ware having a white lining and being really a flat, open casserole. The nappies come in four or five sizes for individual service and in several sizes for use in table serving.

A Woman's Way.

So determined is a woman to "look up" to the man she loves that if she married a worm she would dig a hole in the ground and crawl into it in order to be able to put her head on his shoulder and say: "Darling, how big and strong and tall you are."

Eggs Minus Bacon.

The vogue of bacon as a breakfast dish does not date back very far. We learn from Macaulay that the fare served in 1831 at Rogers' breakfast parties—the most famous on record—consisted of "very good coffee, very good tea and very good eggs, butter left in the midst of ice and hot rolls."

On the Other Hoof.

Let a conductor try to "put one over" by short-changing a patron and a man will rise up in righteous indignation and bowl him out to a fare-you-well. But let the same man get too much change from a conductor and he'll slip it nonchalantly into his pocket and pat himself on the back for his "cuteness."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Easy & Practical Home Dress Making Lessons

Prepared Especially For This Newspaper by Pictorial Review

BOX PLAIED SKIRT, WITH NOVEL BELT.

The belt is original in design and may be trimmed with buttons, if desired.

Well-dressed women have sworn their allegiance to the box-pleated skirt, and it has quickly jumped into fashionable favor. The model shown today looks especially well in cloth, face or covert, serge, tulle, silk poplin or the sporty suitings. It is a four-piece skirt, with a box each side of the front and back gores, and has a high waist-line.

If 54-inch material is employed in its development, 3½ yards will be needed. Box-pleats are much easier to manipulate in modernized dressmaking than they were years ago, especially when the skirt is gored. In cutting out the design, the front and back gores are placed on a fold of material; so is the belt. It will be necessary to piece the side gore, and the piecing, like the gore, is placed on a lengthwise thread of the goods. If preferred, the belt can be cut on a bias fold of the goods instead of crosswise. The small "o" perforations on the lower edges of the gores show how the skirt may be cut off, if desired shorter than provided for in the pattern.

The belt is one of the distinguishing features of the skirt, and although the little flaps are principally for ornamental purposes, small change pockets may be inserted underneath them, thereby providing a utilitarian value to the trimmings.

Buttons of the same or contrasting material may be employed in the decoration of the skirt. Braid also makes an exceedingly fashionable trimming.

A modish four-piece skirt, with box-pleat on each side of front and back.

Medical Advertising CATARRH CAUSED BY A GERM

How To Destroy the Germ and End It.

To cure catarrh so it won't come back you must, according to a noted authority, drive from your body the millions of germs that are flourishing in the inner recesses of your nose and throat and are causing the disease.

There is a preparation which does this called Hyomei (pronounced High-o-mie.) Hyomei is a germ killing vaporized air formed from the purest oil of Eucalyptus combined with other healing and antiseptic ingredients. You breathe Hyomei through the mouth and nose by means of a little hard rubber inhaler which druggists furnish with it. This medicated germicidal air penetrates into every fold and crevice of the mucous membrane of your nose and throat, kills the catarrh germs that lodge there, soothes, reduces and heals the swollen inflamed membrane, stops the discharge and opens up the clogged nose and air passages in a truly wonderful way. Peoples Drug Store and many other leading druggists in GETTYSBURG and vicinity sell Hyomei with the positive guarantee that it must cure catarrh or that the money paid for it will be refunded.

The Unarmed Ranchman

By JOHN TURNLEE

When MacDonnell left his home in Edinburgh for the wild west in America to engage in ranching he was as mild a mannered fellow as ever lived. Nothing troubled him so much as to have a difficulty with any one. On the day of his departure one of his friends said to him:

"It seems to me, Mac, that you will be out of your element in a country where there is no law except gun law."

"Oh, I won't be troubled," was the reply. "I'll not offend any one, and if any one offends me and I have to fight I'll try to arrange for a substitute of fists instead of guns."

"You'll not be likely to effect such an arrangement; you're too strong. Those fellows won't care to tackle you in a trial of muscle."

When MacDonnell reached his new home he astonished the inhabitants of the country by going about without the customary enormous revolver slung to his side. He was warned by friends that such a course was unsafe. True, the people of the region were a generous, whole souled lot, who respected any man for doing as he pleased so long as he did not injure his neighbor. But there were men who had come from the lowest haunts of vice, who would not hesitate to shoot any one they took a fancy to shoot, even if unarmed. But MacDonnell refused to be converted and continued to ride over his ranch with no other weapon than a lasso.

The only trouble he had was with a neighboring ranchman named Hawkins, who insisted on claiming MacDonnell's sheep. For a time, whenever there was a question of ownership between them, Mac would give in. This encouraged Hawkins to increase his demands, and it finally became apparent that if Mac did not call a halt all his sheep would in time be transferred to Hawkins' ranch.

One morning Hawkins rode up to MacDonnell's ranch house, called him out and began to abuse him scurrilously, accusing him of branding one of his (Hawkins') sheep. MacDonnell was obliged to stand and take what was said to him, for should he retaliate in any way Hawkins was liable to draw his revolver and shoot him. Mac waited till he had finished and was about to ride away. Then he said to him:

"Mr. Hawkins, you have grievously insulted an unarmed man. I am opposed to the use of firearms, but if you will give me such satisfaction as may be afforded in the ring with fists I shall be obliged to you."

"That kind of fightin' may do for a milkop like you, but it isn't the kind we're used to in this country. When we fight out here we fight to kill."

With that he rode away.

MacDonnell did not take this attack kindly. Several of his employees, including one of his herders, witnessed the torrent of abuse heaped upon him, and it galled him to live under the obloquy of having taken it without a fight. Besides, he knew that such a public insult would be spread abroad, and he feared that the community would consider him a coward. Finally he made up his mind that he must follow the custom of the country, and the day after the insult the 42 caliber revolver of the country appeared at his hip.

Fortunately he did not happen to meet Hawkins for some time. When he did it was up in the mountains back of the grazing lands. Mac was passing over a path about a yard wide leading around an almost perpendicular cliff. Behind him were two of his herders. Suddenly turning a bend, Hawkins and MacDonnell met face to face and not ten feet apart. Hawkins, being first of four men.

MacDonnell was a very different man from the man who had left Scotland a year before. He had been brooding over the insult he had received till he was ready to fight to the death the man who had given it. He was very quick in his movements, and before Hawkins had quite taken in the situation Mac had drawn his revolver and had the drop on his enemy.

"Mr. Hawkins," he said, "I'll trouble you to ask the man behind you to remove you of your revolver and drop it over the cliff."

Hawkins made no reply for a few moments, glaring at his antagonist. "Suppose I decline," he said presently.

"In that case I'll drop your dead body over with a ball to it."

Hawkins stood. MacDonnell's glance and the muzzle of his revolver a little longer, then told the man behind him to obey the order. His revolver was dropped over the cliff.

It was followed by Mac's weapon, and both men stood unarmed.

"I now propose a wrestling match. Mr. Hawkins, right here. If you can throw me over after my revolver you are welcome to do so."

"I decline certain death for both," said Hawkins.

"Then turn around with your party and go back."

Hawkins made no reply for some time. It was quite a distance to a place where the parties would have plenty of room to pass. Presently he turned and directed his party to go back.

MacDonnell never replaced the revolver he had thrown over the cliff, and its replacement was never needed.

The Surprising Part.
"I was surprised to learn that Fone had had lost his mind." "What was there surprising about it?" "Why, that his friends found it out. That's what surprises me."
